

WELCOME BACK ZAK

ZAK'S FIRST EARTH ADVENTURE

The Day the Snack Became Fuel

A Joyce Andrews creation in collaboration with Anastasia's Wish

A BUMPY LANDING

ZAK's little ship bounced onto Earth with a BONK, a BEEP, and one very confused alien-dog.

'No problem,' said ZAK. 'I will be home before snack time!'

THE MISSING FUEL

ZAK pressed the shiny launch button. Nothing happened. His fuel tank was completely empty. Then he spotted a bright orange carrot.

It looked exactly like a space antenna.

A CRUNCHY EXPERIMENT

ZAK put the carrot in the ignition. CRUNCH! The ship did not move - but ZAK discovered a tasty Earth snack.

Food fuels bodies, not spaceships.

ENERGY FOR HELPING

After a balanced snack, ZAK had energy to gather tools, clean up, and help a neighbor.

Different foods help Earth bodies grow, think, play, and explore.

ANOTHER FUNNY FAILURE

ZAK tried one more launch. The engine sneezed carrot pieces and covered the ship in orange confetti.

ZAK was still on Earth - but now he had a new friend and a new lesson.

TALK ABOUT IT TOGETHER

What new food would you invite ZAK to try? What gives your body energy? How can a mistake become a discovery?

Draw your own Earth snack for ZAK!

Will ZAK make it home next time? Probably not!
